Archbishop Bayley's Romance.

The death of the distinguished Catholic Arch bishop of Baltimere recalls to the memory of some of those who remember him in his youth says the Graphic the romance of his early life. When he decided to leave the Episcopal ministry, for which he had been trained, and study for the priesthood, he made sacrifices that few

He gave up at once not only his social posiion, but the great fortune which his uncle, Mr. James Roosevelt, after whom he was named, intended to bequeath him, and worst of all to some hearts, he renounced the woman whom he loved.

men are called upon to endure.

One of the most famous belies that New England ever produced was Miss Julia Beers, a daughter of Judge Beers, of Litchfield, Conn. During the first thirty years of this century the law school of Litchfield was considered the most distinguished institution of the kind in the country. It drew to this bleak New England village the young men of the best families throughout the country, and one of the most

she met the young Episcopal elergyman, and the two became engaged. The Rev. Mr. Bayley was, at this period, a strikingly handsome man, possessing qualities of heart and mind sure to endear him to those with whom he was brought in contact. They were, indeed, a remarkable man and woman who met in that long past summer, and she, who had been indifferent to a hundred aderers, listened with pleasure to the addresses of a man who felt that until now he had never met a fining mate.

But powerful as love might be in an organization like his, the honesty of religious conviction was still dearer to the heart of the young elergyman, and after his transference to Hagers town, Md., where he met the present Cardinal Catholic priest, This decision was a death blow to Miss Beers. She herself, persuaded by her vent and returned to her friends, all sorts of speculations were set alloat. For a few years she led a life of retirement at her home in Litchfield, and then fell a victim to consump tion and perhaps to a broken heart.

The New York Tribune spoils all this by say ing that "Mr. Bayley and the lady in question were friends from childhood, but not lovers. They were never engaged to be married. She never suffered from either consumption or a broken heart, but remained in excellent health and spirits for more than thirty years after he entered the priesthood, and she died in Europe only a year ago. She made a short trial of convent life as a novice of the Sisters of Mercy, but as this was when she was a middle aged woman, and as much as twelve or fifteen years after the alleged separation from her supposed betrothed, it could hardly have been the result of disappointed love. Neither was there anything peculiar in the circumstances of her return to the world. Finding that the convent did not suit her she went home in the most common place manner, as novices and sisters often do.

WILD HORSES IN WYOMING. -For several months past a band of wild horses have been roaming over the plains in the vicinity of Pine Bluffs, forty miles east of here, drinking daily of the waters of Lodge Pole Creek, a fine large stream near that place. The leader of the band is a large, elegantly proportioned, jet black stallion, with sweeping raven tail and mane, flery eye and majestic mien. Five days ago a party of cattle herders decid ed to give chase to this wild monarch of the boundless plain, and, mounting fresh and fleet steeds, set out upon his trail. They had ar ranged for frequent changes of animals, with the view of keeping him in that immediate vi-cinity and wearing him out by giving him to

The band of flyers was found, and then commenced the long and arduous struggle between men used to the ways of wild horses and cattle, skilled in every device for "cutting out," "rounding up," &c., and an untamed rover of the plains, full of subtle equine strategy, of wonderful speed, in calculable nerve, "bottom" and powers of en For five days and nights has the chase continued. Several of the herders' horses have been killed by hard riding, but when our informant left Pine Bluffs yesterday morning, the noble stallion was prancing around at the head of a band of tame horses, seemingly as fresh and vigorous as though he had never known fatigue. On the second day he was separated from his wild companions and has since been kept away from them. Mr. Cole, the leader of the pursuers, is confident that he will yet capture the magnificent steed, and proposes to follow him to the end.

Several wild horses have been captured in that vicinity during the past year - Cheyenne Leader.
